has also arrived. She left Bremen on the 20th March; and after experiencing a tremendous gale in the North Sea, reached Southampton in fifty hours from the Weser. After taking on board coals, cargo, mails, &c., she finally departed from the docks of Southampton, at 3 P. M., on the 26th, and has, consequently, performed the voyage

She brings about 60 passengers, 100 tons of German merchandise from Bremen, and about 50 tons from Havre and Southampton; and specie, in gold doubloons, value about $250,000. The smallness of the freight is owing to the dulness of the season, and also from the unfair competition of the Cunard steamers, the Havre agents of which lowered their rates of freight to $15 a ton, on purpose, if possible, to deprive the Washington of any shipments from France.

Washington, from Southampton, refers to the grand doings at that place, in consequence of the arrival of the American frigate St. Lawrence, with contribu-tions from the United States to the great Industrial Exhibition in London. The reception of this ship of war was in every way most enthusiastic. Her arrival upon so interesting a mission, was considered more in the light of a national and historical event than that of the visit of a mere ship of war to the port. We observe that the London Times has chronicled the occurrence and the festivities connected therewith in its nost prominent columns, and the London News pub lishes several very beautiful views of the entrance of the St. Lawrence into Southampton Docks, and of the exchange of salutes, which took place between the vessel and the town battery, when she neared her anchoring

When the Washington left Southampton the St. Lawrence had completed discharging her freight, and had left the docks, to take up a position in her old anchorage, opposite the ancient and picturesque ruins of Netley Abbey. The commander-in-chief of the Portsmouth, (Admiral Sir Thomas Biaden Capel) sent one of the government steam tugs to assist the frigate out of dock, during the heavy equinoctial gales which were blowing. Every attention which could possibly be lavished on the cap tain and officers of the St. Lawrence was paid by the naval, military, and civic authorities, and a complete everion had in fact awaited the arrival of this magnifi-

On the 17th March, Commander Sands, accompanied by about a dezen of his officers, paid an official visit to the Mayor of Southampton, (Richard Andrews, Esq.,) at his country residence near Winchester, about twelve miles from Southampton. The officers were accompanied by J. R. Croskey Esq. the American Counsel, and by the bulk of civic authorities, together with gentlemen representing the great public companies. On arriving at Winchesterthe visiters proceeded directly to the heaptiful residence of the Mayor, where they were received with all that friendship and warm heartedness for which the chief magistrate of Southampton is so remarkably distinguished. The American flag floated from the top of the dwelling, and with the fountains playing in the garden, produced a beautiful effect. The party, soon after their reception, accompanied by the Mayor, proceeded to view the cathe dral and college, with the beauties and historical associations of which they expressed themselves highly gratified. After having spent several hours in looking over these objects of interest, they returned to the Mayor's house, where a sumptuous banquet was provided for them. After unsparing justice had been done to the viands and choice wines set before the company, the Mayor gave the health of the Queen of England, which was most enthusiastically responded to by the American officers. The next toust was "The President of the United States," which was drank with all the honors The Mayor then proposed "Captain Sands, and the offiral rounds of cheering, and was responded to by the gallant officer in most appropriate terms. In the course of his remarks Capt, Sands made some most happy allusions to the objects of interest the company had just been admiring, and pointed out how England and Ame rica drew their knowledge of the arts, both of war and peace, from a common origin. The speech of Capt. Sands gave great satisfaction to all pr-sent; and many of his classical references pointed out the accomplished scholar not less than the able commander. Amongst the succeeding toasts was that of " Captain Paulding, and recollections of the former visit of the St. Lawrence." The company afterwards broke up, delighted with the princely hospitality displayed by the worthy Mayor of Southampton.

Southampton, accompanied by the aldermen, town councillors, and civic authorities, in their official costume, paid a visit to the St. Lawrence. The deputation wa conveyed from the town quay in three state barges, pre-ecded by the boat of the American Consul, Mr. Croskey bearing the fisg of the United States. Hundreds of people congregated on the quays to witness the spectacle. On reaching the ship, a salute of thirteen guh was fired in honor of the mayor, as admiral of the port. In France, the transition ministry of Louis Napoleon continues in office; he has endeavored to form a responsible ministry, but has not succeeded. By a well informed person who has just returned from Paris, and whole ceasion to speak with the leading politicians of France. I am told that in 1852 some great change will take place in the system of government in France. He is of the opinion that Louis Napoleon will not remain in power beyond that period. I give this as the opinion of a man of acknowledged judgment in affairs of State policy.

of a man of acknowledged judgment in state opinion of a man of acknowledged judgment in states of State policy.

Meantime, a discussion commences this very evening in the French Assembly, of no small importance as regards the interests of Louis Napoleon. The question has been mooted whether the electoral law of 31st May, passed by the Assembly, and which put an end to universal suffrage, is not applicable to the election of the President of the Republic. If it is declared so, it will deprive Louis Napoleon of a great number, say one third, of the six million votes he received on his first election. The debate will, under all circumstances, throw some light upon the intentions of the Assembly.

The affairs of Germany continue in the same unsettled state. The reports in the Paris Debats, that Genoral Radowliz once more guides the councils of the King of Pruesia, are devoid of foundation; the assertion however, that France has protested in very energetic language against the admission of all the provinces of Austria into the Germanic comfederation, is perfectly true. The Vicana journals declare that France has nothing whatever to do in a purely German question. The Emperor of Austria has gone to Trieste, to inspect the Austrian flect. He meets there with King Otho, of Greece, who is returning to his kingdom, after endeavoring to settle the succession is favor of his younger brother. Prince Adaibert of Bavaria. It seems doubtful whether he has succeeded. Before leaving Vienna, the Emperor took a very supportant step, the details of which have not yet transpired. He gave his sanction to the formation of a Reicha-rath, or Council of the Empire, and ordered plans to be ready for him on his return from Trieste, for reme.

The operatic season of 1851 has commented. Her Majesty's theatre opened last Saturday, with "Lucia di Lammermoor," for the debut (in England) of Caroline Duprez. I have seldom seen a better house—every box was taken; the theatre has been completely fitted up fresh and new. Caroline Duprez has a fine tonest voice, which reminds me much of Perdiam. She is very young, (not pretty, though intelligent looking,) and wants emismont. She has evidently studied her art with care; I do not think she will vere be a great success in light operas. She was too much painted. The ballet of "L.The des Amours," with that graceful little dancer Amalia Ferraris, is got up with great taste and elegance. Tomorrow we have "Gustavus," in which Forential appears, and Carlotta Grist, the danseue des danseuses. The Italian Opera House (Convent Garden.) opens also temorrow, with "Semiramide." The entire copyright of the works of Sir Walter Scott, comprising the novels, poetry, prace writings, as well as the life of Sir Walter, by Lockhart, with the steel plates, wood-cuts, and stereotype plates belonging thereto, was yesterday offered for sale at the London Coffee House, Ludgate Hill, by Mr. Rodgson, on account of the trustees of the late Mr. Robert Undell. The conditions of sale stipulated that the purchaser of the above should take the remaining stock in the heads of the publishers, at the sum of £10,100, or at a price to be detrained upon by referees. It was saided by the auctioneer, that the sale of the "Waverly Novels" during the last two years, had amounted to 71,000 volumes. The biddings commenced at £5,000, and advanced to £14,500; and the property was eventually bought in by the trustees. The sale was attended by the leading men in the trade.

The American Tariff in the British Parliament.

In the House of Commons, on Thursday, the 27th ult:—

Mr. Booker begged to ask the President of the Board of Trade, if the government had received any information, and if they would lay it before the House, of the nature and extent of the increase in the protective duties proposed to be levied on the import into the United States, of all kinds of iron, and on variour other articles of British produce and manufacture now exempt from duty? He (Mr. Booker.) held in his hand a public document, which stated that on the 25th of February last, in a discussion on a bill before the American House of Assembly, an amendment had been proposed and carried by a majority of one hundred and twenty-seven, imposing additional duties on all kinds of iron and other manufactures, and imposing duties on other articles at present entirely exempt from duty. By a private communication from Philadelphia, just received, he learned that a strong combination existed there to secure a greater amount of protection to iron—protection to the extent of thirty per cent more than the present duty. As regarded cotton, nothing had been arranged for the Manchester people had out bid the Americans in that department.

Mr. Lancteneza had inquired at the proper quarter as to whether any report had been received from Sir H. Bulwer, on the subject to which the honorable gentleman (Mr. Booker.) referred, and he had found that no despatch had been received from him. (Sir H. Mr. Labouchers said he had been misunderstood by some honorable gentlemen behind him. They had thought that he (Mr. Labouchere.) had said these alterations in the American tariff had passed into a law of the United States. From the newspapers, that certainly did not appear to be the case. The alterations had passed through the House of Representatives, but not through the Senate, and, consequently, they were not law. The question put to him (Mr. Labouchere.) was as to whether their had been any despatch received on the subject from Sir II. Bulwer, and his (Mr. Labouchere's) reply was, that there had not.

He will not, however, take up the cause list before the commencement of Easter Term. The Marchioness of Lansdowne continues in the same state of extreme illness that it has been our misfortune to announce for some days past.

We announced, some time store, on good authority, that it would take place. time since, on good authority, that it would take place. The appointment of Sir John Romilly to the vacant seat on the bench will be made as soon as it will be convenient for the government to dispense with the vote of the honorable and learned member for Devonport. The tervices of Lord Langdale are justly appreciated by all the members of the profession of which he is an honoured member. We believe that Sir John Romilly will be a worthy successor of the noble Lord.

Sir Alexander Ceckburn has been promoted to the office of Attorney General in place of Sir John Romilly, and is succeeded as Seljeitor General by Mr. Page Woed. Sir John Romilly was this morning sworn in as Master of the Rolls, before the Lord Chancellor.

THE ATTEMPTED INSTRUCTION AT FRIBURG.

Advices from Berne, of the 22d uit, state that at eight o'clock that morning, eighty peasants, armed, surprised the town of Friburg, and succeeded in gaining possession of some pieces of camon which were in the old establishment of the Jeauits. The government caused the teem to be rung, and the generale to be beaten. The militio, faithful to their duty, assembled in the principal streets, and attacked the peasants, who had posted themselves in the upper part of the town. The affair was short, but very warm, eight men were killed or wounded. It appears that this movement of the peasants against the radical government of Friburg was premature, for the peasants affirmed that 2000 of their holy were following them. It is probable that the latter dispersed when they heard that the enterprise had failed. In the present state of affairs at Fribourg such movements are almost inevitable, seeing the immense majority which the government has against it. It is to be hoped that the Federal Assembly at its next sitting will interfere in this unfortunate affair, and re-establish the equilibrium, without which the country cannot be govered in peace. Order has since been perfectly restored.

The Swiss journals of the 25th contain but few additional details on the affair of Friburg. On the insurgents were found the list of a provisional government charged to draw up a new constitution, and a decree for establishing a court-martial with absolute power. There was also found a proclamation announcing the dissolution of the present government, the dismissai of all functionard that Canard, the leader, and many more of the insurgents, were taken prisoners. The Council of the State had declared the town in a state of siege. Neithe the towners and the affair of the affair of the insurgents, were taken prisoners.

Our accounts from Madrid are of the 21st uit.

The Committee on the Public Debt met the evening before, and adopted the third, fourth, and fifth clauses o the bill. The sixth would have been likewise voted had not M. Aldamar entered into long developements in favor of the persons whose property had been burnt or pillaged during the civil war, and for whom he claimed some compensation. The committee adjourned till the 22d, when the President of the Council was to submit to it decuments necessary to emble it to form an estimate of the extent of the damages.

According to the same journal. M. Bustillos, Minister of Marine, was to be appointed commander of the naval station in Cuba, and to be succeeded in the cabinet by General Pavia.

Advices from Constantinople of the 6th ult. say:—
General Pembinski arrived here last week from Kutayah, where he left his fellow-prisoners, expecting the arrival of the commissary of the Ports and the agent of the internucio, who were to bring the Emperer of Austra's ammesty. General Dembinski was perfectly well received at the French enhancy. He does not, as was reported, intend to stay at Constantinople, but will einbark in the next mail steamer for Paris. He has been visited by all the refugees of distinction here, but Poles and Italians. On the evening of his arrival a company of refugee musicians, called Garibaidi's band, gave him a scremade, and at the intervals between the airs should—
"The republic for ever'. Down with the Austrians" in which they were joined by the crowd of refugees. General Dembinski did not seem over flattered by this demonstration, and is even said to have severely blamed it. Curiously enough, Garibaidi's band, after serenading General Dembinski, want to the Russian palace, where there was a ball, and, for the usual fee, played all night while the Russians and Austrians danced. The ex-governor of Engdad, Nedjib Pacha, died afew days back, at the age of eighty-seven. He was one of the richest men in Constantinople, one of the principal Ulemas of the capital, Imam Zade, member of the Council of State, and leader of the retrograde party. He was carried of very suddenly, and was yesterday buried with great pomp.

The Sultan has narrowly escaped being poisoned. Some fanatical Clemas, headed by the Sultan's ewn brother, had formed a plot against his life, and endeavored to effect that purpose by bribing his physician. The latter pretended to account to their designs, and was to receive a million of plastres if he mixed poison with his Highness's medicine. The conspirators fell into the snare, and gave a written promise to pay the bribe. The doctor then revealed the whole affair to the Sultan, who refused to believe the story till he saw the written proof of the crime. As the doctor would most certaily have been assassinated by the conspirators if he remained at Constantinople, he was handsomely re warded by the Sultan, and sent off to Trieste with his family. Some few days after, a number of Ulemas had disappeared, having been privately executed; but it is not known what has become of the Sultan's brother.

The Bosnian Provinces.

Accounts from the frontiers of Bosnia, in the Piedmontese Gazette, of the 18th, confirm the fact of a new insurrection having broken out in the Kraina. The numbers of the insurgents have not been exactly ascertained, but it is certain they have formed three bodies, one of which is advancing upon Livno, the second upon Pessvine, and the third upon Daika and Travuik. Mustapha Pasha Melementsi, who had been sent by the Scraskier to the Kraina with 2000 men, has received orders be march immediately to Travnik, and similar orders have been forwarded to Arab Mehmet Pasha. The Scraskier is murching in person against Kraina. At Banjaluka, the Mahametans have driven away all the Rajahs who are attached to the existing government. They absolutely refuse to submit to the new regularions; they will not allow the Christians to have equal rights with themselves, nor be cheeked in their own arbitrary proceedings. IMPORTANT FROM THE PAPAL STATES.

The Pope and Tardinals have fallen into the depth of deepast (says the Rome correspondent of the London Times: under date of the 14th ult.) since the Prench stemmes of yesteroky distributed the fatal news of the restoration of the Bussell Cabinet. I am told that the Post fell like a thunderbolt on the Vatican and that, for a long time, the Holy Father and the Camarilla refused to credit the bad news. It was only when their own despatches strived that they admested the melancholy truth, and now, unable to make head against it, they look to the Protectionists, to the Irish members, to free trade, to anything and everything, as a means of again throwing the country into confusion, and expelling the whig cabinet. Cardinel-Wiseman and his advisers, who had lately regained the position they had lost on the majority in flavor of bringing in the bill, being made known here, have again fallen into disrepute, and the Vatican is more irritated Shan ever at their indiscretion; even the Supreme Pontiff feels that the Archbishop of Westminster had miscalculated the force of his adversaries, and his Since, who was looked upon as inspired, because all his letters asserted that the Ministry was struck to the ground is now regarded as a feeble maa, misled by his own vanity, and who knew not how to estimate the weight or extent of public opinion at home.
